Norway Ice Climbing

Description

Talking about Norway what immediately pops up are nordic landscapes and fiords, but if you are climbing fans, your mind can't help but wonder to the perfect ice falls of this stunning northern land.

Every kind of climbing line is hidden between canyons and forests in an environment, by itself, worth the trip.

In eight days (v.v. ticket) we'll climb in Norway's two major ice falls: Rjukan e Hemesedal.

In the first locality, Rjukan, the operative word is "lots of ice and short approaches". The largest part of the falls is located in a suggestive canyon, easy to reach. During the transfer to Hemseda we'll stop to climb the beautiful cliff of Golsjuvet, located in a creek bed inside the norse wood. The environment in Hemsedal is pretty different. Wide spaces, mountains similar to hills and many hills exposed to the sun and particularly enjoyable.

All in one, we'll spend six days in breath-taking landscapes and on whimsically shaped and colored ice falls.
