Mountaineering course – Rocks Ridge

Description

Between the most common terrains to cope with in a classical alpinistic ascent, there are with no doubts the rock ridges.

In those terrains a good experience in progression in preserves makes the difference, helping to proceed in a safe and quick way.

During the rock climbing course you will learn to use quick protections both for progressions, constructions of stops and binding and progression methods in preserves on rocky terrains.

In both days we will travel ridge itineraries of medium challenge, suitable for learning so that participants can engage in progression as first in a roped party.
